EPWORTH LEAGUE SESSION

Considerable Business Done at the Annual Convention.

Election of Officers—Surprise Created by the Defeat of Rev. Dr. Stricklin for President.

The seventh annual convention of the Epworth League of the District of Columbia, which opened on Friday evening with a grand rally at Hamilton M. E. Church, completed its work and adjourned last evening. The business sessions occupied the greater part of yesterday and were laborious throughout.

The great and only surprise of the convention was the defeat last evening, of the Rev. W. R. Stricklin, pastor of Hamilton Church, for the presidency of the league. Dr. Stricklin was placed in nomination in a ringing speech by Dr. Stricklin. There were six others placed in nomination, but five of these withdrew, leaving the contest between Dr. Stricklin and Mr. J. Finney Engle. It was the general impression of prominent delegates before the result was announced, that the former would be the choice of the convention by a large majority. On the first ballot ninety-five votes were cast. Of these Dr. Stricklin received 43, Mr. Engle 41, and there were 11 scattering. On the next ballot Mr. Engle was elected.

The other officers chosen are: First vice president, E. P. Hamilton; second vice president, H. B. Moulton; third vice president, H. B. Moulton; fourth vice president, Harry Hayden Chase; recording secretary, Charles F. Bell; corresponding secretary, Fred E. Woodward; treasurer, George E. Armstrong; superintendent of Junior League, Miss Jennie Watts.

The business sessions of the convention began at 1:15 p. m., and were presided over by President W. S. DeWitt. While the delegates to the convention were making their reports and transacting other business, the delegates to the convention were making their reports and transacting other business.

GRATEFUL MRS. EVANS

The Wife of a Special Pension Examiner Tells How She Was CURED BY MUNYON

She Suffered for Years From a Complication of Diseases—Read the Story of Her Cure.

Mrs. W. H. Evans, wife of special examiner in the Pension Bureau, residing at 1446 Corcoran street northwest, Washington, D. C., says: "I was a sufferer from a complication of diseases for several years. These were nervous prostration, general debility, stomach and liver trouble, catarrh and nervous headache. I was unable to get relief from any source until I placed myself under the care of Munyon's Specialists. By the use of Munyon's Remedies and Munyon's electrical machines and life chamber, I find that all my pains caused by that disease have disappeared."

Munyon's Remedies comprise a separate cure for each disease, and are sold of all druggists, mostly at 25 cents a bottle. Munyon's Remedies include: Electric Machine, Rheumatism, Stiff Joints, Paralysis and Neuritis, Nervous Debility, Catarrh of the Bladder, Gonorrhea, and Stricture. ## LATHAM REMAINS CHAMPION.

Defeats George Standing in the International Match.

New York, Nov. 27.—Peter Latham retains his title of champion of the world at racquets. The British expert today defeated George Standing, of this city, in the second half of the international match for the championship and a stake of $10,000, by a score of four games to three. The contest was decided on the court of the New York Racquet and Tennis Club, in West Forty-third street.

Standing won the first and third sets, but lost the second and fourth. The match was a very fast and exciting one, and the spectators were very much interested. The match was a very fast and exciting one, and the spectators were very much interested.

Possibly the most satisfactory report made by Treasurer George E. Armstrong. It showed a balance on the right side of the ledger of $139,701. During the year the league also paid a debt of $1,000.

Miss Watts, superintendent of the Junior

League, reported great activity of the younger members of the league. There are twenty-two chapters, and during the year nearly 500 meetings were held.

A grand finale of the meeting of the district department was a solo by Mrs. Ada Allen Leach, who sang with much feeling, "I Will Go Wherever Thou Biddest Me, Oh Lord."

There will be a grand rally of the district department, at 8 o'clock, at Hamilton Church. In the evening, Rev. Dr. Stricklin will preach the consecration sermon.

SECRETARY LONG'S ECONOMY.

A Belief That He Opposes a Govern## ment Armory Factory.

Certain parts of the annual report of Secretary Long, of the Navy, are regarded as a warning to the statement that he is opposed to the establishment of a Government armory factory. He has recommended a reduction of about $1,000,000 in the next appropriation for the Navy, and about $5,000,000 reduction in the appropriations for naval construction. All the way through he is in favor of economy. This is regarded as singular, inasmuch, in the same report, he gives statistics to show the activity in naval construction of other nations. Spain's activity being not the least remarkable.

There is much comment also on the fact that the opinion of the Secretary, that there is no danger of war, is not apparently sustained by his suggestions of haste in the matter of ducking facilities, and the giving of contracts for millions of war.

Not long ago a big contract was awarded to the American Ordnance Company, at Bridgeport, Conn., the terms being 10,000 6-inch shells, at a cost of $15 each; 15,000 rounds of 6-pounder shell for use against torpedo boats, at a cost of $2 each; 25,000 soft steel "points" for armor-piercing projectiles of all calibers, 75 guns of light calibers. The majority of these are intended for use upon auxiliary cruisers. The money value of this contract is about $270,000.

This material is to be delivered at the earliest possible moment. Other material for immediate use, such as armor piercing shells, is being delivered as fast as possible to the ordnance corps of the Navy. No one understands why this war material should be so rushed into position in time of profound peace. They are not holiday emotions. The report of the Secretary bristles with just such orders and recommendations. It is, however, quite apparent that while it is impossible to build battleships in a hurry for a near-at-hand contingency, the arming of the present vessels with shot and shell is the next best thing that could be done, and that the Secretary is doing his utmost to equip the Navy for an era of peace.

Sunday School Convention.

An adjourned meeting of the executive committee of the Sunday School Association, representing the white evangelist schools of the District, was held Saturday evening, at the residence of Mr. Jerome F. Johnson, No. 805 H street northwest, the president of the association, Mr. P. H. Johnson, in the chair, and final arrangements were made for the convention, which assembled this evening at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church. The secretary was instructed to publish condensed minutes of the convention, including his report, and those of the president and treasurer.

THE WOMAN OF FASHION.

Fair Charmers in Evening Gowns Have Begun Their Slaughter.

New York, Nov. 27.—The splendor and the fairy flight of the annual social dance has now fairly begun, and the unfortunate "dies" who are so rash as to be caught in the fairy "spiders" web are "paying the fiddler" on a pretty lively tune—the live-lyer as Christmas approaches. Indulgent fathers are also paying fiddlers—or, at least, fitters—at a rapid rate, if one is to judge from the gowns one sees fitting.

Into matrices or whirling through the mazes of a waltz. Nothing in the world is so pretty for dancing as a gown all follows and flounces, that flutter and fling to the one, two, three of the waltzing music.

The skirt dancer has learned this, and as she promiscuous through one of her graceful measures one sees nothing but dreams of fluffery lace in one snowy swirl about her figure. Mademoiselle Pierette has become a queen on the inside as well as the outside of her petticoat—a practice which it would be well for any of us to follow, as it tends a fluffiness to one's costume that cannot be attained by any number of flounces on the upper side.

For ordinary dancing dresses, a couple of wide flounces make a graceful trimming. One very simple gown has a skirt composed of three pleated flounces—the first one reaching about thirteen inches from the waist, the second the same width, and the third a trifle wider, reaching to the bottom of the skirt. Each is trimmed with four rows of narrow satin ribbon.

The waist is a blouse with four rows of satin ribbon running around just below the ruffle which finishes the square neck. The sleeves are nothing more than a couple of ribbon-edged ruffles standing out from the shoulder, and long gloves supply the deficiencies in length.

Sleeves reaching to the elbow are frequently worn with evening dresses, but are more desirable for dinner gowns than for dancing dresses. They are usually shirred on both sides and end in a narrow flounce and a bow of ribbon.

A handsome gown which has been designed for a December dinner at New York's newest hotel is made of narrow blue satin. The skirt has a flounce of accordion-pleated chiffon at the bottom made over another flounce of the satin. The chiffon flounce is trimmed with ruffles of itself, one at the head, one at the middle and one at the bottom of the flounce.

The bodice is of velvet in a slightly deeper tone of blue than the satin. It is elaborately trimmed with ruffles of chiffon and pearl embroidery. The corsage fastens, as most evening waists do, in the middle of the back. The sleeves, which reach to the elbow, are made of shirred chiffon.

An extremely simple gown will be worn by one of the most "glamorous" of charmers when she waves her web at a holiday dinner. The skirt is a simple, straight, narrow skirt, with a flounce of accordion-pleated chiffon at the bottom made over another flounce of the satin. The chiffon flounce is trimmed with ruffles of itself, one at the head, one at the middle and one at the bottom of the flounce.

All sorts of changes are being rung upon the Consue Co. Since it is used for an outside jacket as well as for the dress bodice, it is necessary that the style be varied as much as possible. One of the most artistic gowns I have yet seen is a simple, straight, narrow skirt, with a flounce of accordion-pleated chiffon at the bottom made over another flounce of the satin. The chiffon flounce is trimmed with ruffles of itself, one at the head, one at the middle and one at the bottom of the flounce.

A gown of velvet blouse is rather a useful garment. It can be worn as a street dress with a dark skirt, or worn sufficiently decorated with lace and ribbons to make a dressy costume of theater waist. I saw a very pretty costume with this idea at the costume yesterday. The blouse was plain color, and was worn with a black velvet point skirt.

Plain color velvet gown favorite with young women. A good many are fond of combining it with a lighter shade of heliotrope, and, surprising to say, the combination is not bad.
